The outgoing students of the Department of Geography are actively pursuing diverse higher education pathways, enriching their academic and professional expertise in both traditional and specialized courses. Many of them have secured admissions in reputable institutions such as Dibrugarh University, Gauhati University, Tezpur University, and J.B. University, where they continue their studies in various branches of geography and related disciplines. Additionally, several students are enrolled in professional courses that equip them with practical skills and specialized knowledge, allowing them to excel in fields beyond academia. These universities offer a wide range of advanced programs, providing the students with opportunities to delve deeper into areas such as Geo-informatics and GIS (Geographical Information Systems) and disaster management. Some have also taken the initiative to study in institutions like Sikkim University, Mizoram University, North Eastern Hill University (NEHU), and Assam University, expanding their educational experiences across the northeastern region of India. Their commitment to furthering their education reflects the strong academic foundation laid by the Department of Geography at Gargaon College. This pursuit of higher education at various prestigious universities demonstrates the department's role in nurturing capable individuals who are well-prepared for advanced studies and research, ultimately contributing to the academic and professional fields of geography.
